

American Society of Journalists and Authors

America's leading organization of independent nonfiction writers, ASJA has been around for more than 60 years. You could say they're the granddaddy of professional writers' organizations.

To qualify for ASJA's elite membership, Denise produced sustained evidence of writing---on a freelance basis---full-length bylined magazine articles in major publications over a substantial period of time.